

Five Points Capital Welcomes Marcus Mollmann as an Operating Partner

MARCUS MOLLMANN
OPERATING PARTNER

Five Points Capital is excited to announce its recently formed partnership with Marcus Mollmann, an accomplished leader in the tech-enabled services sector. Five Points has partnered with Marcus to identify, provide strategic guidance to, and actively support Five Points investment opportunities, primarily in the following target markets: (i) tech-enabled services and (ii) outsourced equipment and facility services. Five Points is actively seeking platform and add-on acquisition opportunities in these target markets, with an emphasis on companies serving regulated industries such as healthcare, financial services and state and local governments.

Marcus has over 12 years of business leadership experience. Most recently, Marcus led the transformation of CORVENA, a software technology firm, by enhancing the product offering, improving customer/industry relationships, and implementing a scalable sales strategy that drove 80% revenue growth to reach a successful outcome. Prior to CORVENA, Marcus led 400% annualized growth at a technology startup by designing a vanguard technology product, achieving industry-best customer satisfaction, and developing scalable marketing initiatives relying on a behavior-based analytic model. Previously, Marcus has worked in real estate, investment banking, and the federal government.

Outside of work, Marcus enjoys spending time with his wife, Katy, and four children. Marcus is a member of YPO and has is active in extending educational opportunities having served as Chairman of the Jacob K. Javits Fellowship Board Chairman and as a Board of Advisor for Alliance for Choice in Education. Marcus also enjoys biking, running, golf and skiing. Marcus received a Master in Business Administration from Harvard Business School and a B.A. from Duke University with a dual major in Economics and Public Policy.
